

Michael Feldman

Michael is an experienced information security and technology professional who has served as a trusted advisor to Fortune 500 companies and international financial services firms. He has presented on personal and family internet safety with a strong desire to help protect youngsters. As a parent, and a sports coach, he sees children as our future and has the desire to help position them to be as successful as possible.